AMUSEMENTS.

"EL CAPITAN."

"El Capitan" is the title of the opera
Mr. Sousa has written for De Wolf Hopper, which was presented at the Broadway Theatre, New York, and had a run of over one year. The libretto is by Charles Klein, the successful author of "The Chariot." The appearance of the "El Capitan" in this city will mark the first production of this great comic opera success which contains so many beautiful airs by the King of Marches, John Philip Sousa.
This name is known the world over, and he is as great at his pen as he is in holding his baton. No comic opera has achieved the success as has "El Capitan."
It is so well known that it has been played by all military bands throughout the United States. The scenery and costumes used in this wonderful production are the handsomest that have ever been seen in this city.
The Celebrated Grand Opera Company will present "El Capitan" at the Grand to-morrow night, and it will be a rare Christmas Eve treat. Secure seats at Borland's.

"THE CHRISTIAN."

Hall Caine's great play, "The Christian," is beyond question the most talked of popular and successful drama of the day. It comes to the Grand on next Saturday night and is presented by a splendid company under the management of Liebler & Co. In making the dramatization of the play from his famous novel, Mr. Caine exercises the liberty of the dramatist only to extend absolutely necessary, and while in some features the play differs from the book, such difference only tends to strengthen the situation and the effect, and does not detract from the value of the story.

One of the most affecting scenes is where John Storm enters the apartment of Glory Quayle at night with the purpose of making her pray and saving her through death. But the love of Glory triumphs. The play ends with a mutual understanding between them, they deciding to brave life's battles together.

Everybody should see "The Christian."
It is not only one of the most powerful, absorbing dramatic plays written, an unexampled moral lesson and the most eloquent and masterly sermon ever preached.

A Fault To Be Remedied.

The only thing to mar the excellent performance of "The Strollers" at the Grand last week was the inability of the company to use their scenery. The fly galleries of the stage were built to accommodate scenery 26 feet wide. The scenery of "The Strollers" being 40 feet could not be used. This defect will be remedied at once, and in the future every piece of scenery carried by the Grand Opera Company to-morrow night carry 36 feet scenery, and the production will be a marvelous one from a scenic as well as artistic and musical standpoint. 2t

THE NIGHT EXPRESS.

From out the mist-laden meadows, along the river shore,
The night express-train whistles with eye of fire before.
A trail of smoke behind her enclouds the rising moon
That glides the shining poplars and floods the wide lagoon.
Through yellow fields of harvest and waving fields of corn
The night express-train rumbles with whistle low and horn.
The silent village harkens the sound it knows so well,
And boys wait on the siding to hear the engine bell.
While lads who used to loiter with wistful steps and slow,
Await tonight a comrade who comes, but will not go.
The train that brings to mothers the news of sons who roam
Shoots red from out the marshes to bring a wanderer home.

With restless heart of boyhood we watched that headlight when
The whistle seemed to call us to dare the world of men;
To leave the plow and herd-whip for lads with hearts of clay,
And while our blood was leaping be up and far away;
To find the great world somewhere, to wander wide and see
If men of coast or mountain were better men than we.
We heard the hoarse throat whistle, we heard the engine bell,
We saw the red eye blazing, we knew the hot heart well.
But little could we reckon, gay-hearted boys at play,
The horse that took us out to men, would bring us home one day.
That took us out at morning, with shining wheels and hum,
Would bring us home at evening, when we were glad to come.

CHAPTER II.—CONTINUED.

"I haven't any room for you, Gloria," said I.
"Don't make no difference. We've got a good one to him. You can have both, or you can lose us both. I reckon what Baldy lives is good enough for me."
"I will have no scandal," said I, "and if you stay you will have to work for your board."
"You don't want to hire me then?"
"No," said I. "I can't afford to do that. But if you wish to stay for a week or until I get rid of an unpleasant complication, you may. Come now, Gloria, do relieve my mind, and tell me that it was you up in my bedchamber."
"Hain't left this blessed seat since I come in here," declared Gloria.
"Then who could it have been?"
"Yer aunt, probably."
"My aunt! You know well enough Gloria, that my aunt cannot move from her bed. Everything that is done for my aunt I have to do. A bright thought struck me. 'Now, why shouldn't you take some of the care of my aunt off my shoulders while you stay?'"

"Guess she wouldn't hev me," replied Gloria.
"I don't care," said I. "I'll see about it when I've done a stirring of this mess."
"There's one thing I won't have in this house," said I, looking at the cowhide, "and that's—"
"Lor," said Gloria, following my eyes with hers—"he likes it."
"Do you, Baldwin?" said I. "He was peeping in at the door."
"Pshaw," said he, "she can't hurt a fly."
"We'll see," said Gloria, still stirring.

"Haven't you the spunk of a flea?" said I, starting up in a rage. "Baldwin, why don't you have her bound over to keep the peace?"
"Pshaw, she don't hurt none. I'd jess as lives she'd amuse herself's aunt."

"Do you know who was up in my room just now, Baldwin?"
His wife gave him a quick glance, whether of caution or threat I could not decide.
"How sh'd I know? I've been a-sittin' wood ever since I got up."

"Baldwin," said I, "I must go to town. Sit a minute until I get back, will you?" And again I started with the broken glass and walked quickly by on my way. When I got nearly into the village I saw a man coming towards me on a bicycle. As he neared me I saw his wheel and my office whom I consider more faithful to my interests.

(Signed) "Walton F. G. Haight, Editor of the Star Union."

Of course I knew that Mr. Haight was the editor of the Star Union. I turned to the other, which was written very differently from the first. Mr. Haight's recommendation was in a strong, heavy hand, an upright hand which wobbled first this way and then that. The second recommendation was written in a fine, thin hand, almost a lady's hand, and certified, very much in the same language, that Mr. Beldon was to be trusted with almost anything that this or any other world possessed. This was signed "John Everett." Somehow the names gave me much comfort, for I knew all about their owners, and felt confidence in the young man, my prospective boarder, from that moment.

"Very well," said I. "Go on to the house. I will be back soon. I'm just going in town for a locksmith."

"Indeed?" he laughed. "What has happened? The young woman hasn't locked herself in the cellar, has she?"

"No," said I, "but I've broken the lock of my desk. By the way, the young woman won't trouble you for long. She's going away."

"Going away?" His look was one of incredulity. "That's—that's better than I expected. What's the reason?"

"Well, I don't like some things about her."

"I hope I haven't frightened her away," said my new boarder. "I should be sorry to make you lose the rent of the room on my account. What's she doing?"

"Well, I don't want to prejudice you—"

"Oh, you can't prejudice me. I always judge for myself. What's she doing?"

"Well, she was out at the gate last night—it must have been all of 12 o'clock—with some other man. She says he's her brother, but I do not believe it."

"Don't!" said the man. "I wouldn't. No one with a particle of sense could. The idea of a girl talking at the gate at 12 o'clock with her own brother! Why, it's beyond reason. It's a waste of raw material. I wouldn't believe a word she says if she tells such stories as that. You see, if that man was her own brother, he might as well have been at some other gate with some other fellow's sister, and the other girl's brother might as well have been at your gate with your young woman. Well, I hope you'll get rid of her. I won't say by fair means or foul. I suppose she's got her living to make as well as the rest of us, but I'd rather she'd make it elsewhere than in your lower front, if I'm to have the lower back."

"She's very quiet thus far," said I, thinking regretfully of the money spent and the bills locked up in the desk.

"I'm glad of that! No cackling girls yet, eh? Well, I'm sure I don't mind her talking with her brother, or any other girl's brother, at your front gate at 12 or one in the morning. I am secure in my lower back, and then I'm in town always at night, you know. Now, I'm going home to bed. I'll be back in five or six o'clock. Then I should like a bite of something, and I'll be off. You'll see that I'm not a great eater."

"Thank heaven for that," I murmured, and proceeded on my way. The young man jumped upon his wheel and was off. A minute had passed, when I heard some one calling to me. I turned. It was Mr. Beldon coming back. My heart fell. Had he decided not to take the room? Had anything in my manner—

"I came back to ask you how I can get into the room without the young woman seeing me. I just want to crawl in, you know, incog., as it were. Is there a side door, or a back door, or anything, where I—"

"Lock your wheel," said I, "and when you have opened the gate walk right round the left side of the house. Go on the grass. I hate to have you, but this time you may. You'll find my man servant, there, unless his wife has inveigled him up to the loft. If you hear groans, go up at once and protect him."

"Yes, if she's beating him. If she isn't—"

"What a mysterious household!" exclaimed Mr. Beldon. "Really, you frightened a quiet man like me, a simple, harmless, unassuming fellow. I don't know what I'm doing here."

"Oh, there's nothing to be afraid of," returned I. "I only hope that if you hear Baldwin calling for help—"

"I am to go up and beat his wife?"

"No," said I, "not at all. Go up and beat him for being such a fool, and I'll turn away."

"Oh, one thing more," I called. "Don't forget it's the left side you're to go round, if you don't want her to see you."

"Who to see me?"

"Miss Dacres."

"The new boarder—J. A. Dacres. Those are her initials on the dress suit case."

"Are they?" said he. He repeated the name, "J. A. Dacres, J. A. D. Oh, yes, I see, I see. Clever, very clever indeed! Well, I'll go along. Round to the left, you say. Presumably she's on the right side of the house. Good-by," and he was off.

I walked toward the village, pondering what he meant by those words, "Clever! very clever, indeed!"

CHAPTER III.

I plodded steadily on towards the town. As I neared the village I saw a carriage approaching me. As it passed I perceived that it held two occupants. I well knew. They were Miss Elizabeth and Miss Evelyn. They were from the Hall, or, rather, they used to be from the Hall and would now be again. They were in deep black, and were evidently on their way to the old Darlington place, where their brother had died. It seemed strange that I had almost forgotten all about the sensation of the hour because of my own troubles. The truth is, I had been thinking very deeply of the ladies when Miss Dacres came up to the gate the day before, and I had also been thinking very deeply of my own affairs. I really had not known where to turn until I found that I could let the rooms, and the completion of my arrangements had put everything else out of my mind. It seemed strange too that I should have been so forgetful of all that happened at the Hall. I had been at home there, in days gone by, as governess to Mr. Eugene's little girl and as friend to the older ladies, that I felt the death of the Squire very much, but poverty is a master who drives away our tenderest thoughts, taking possession with his grim presence of the place which harbored them, and I was all at once aware that my anxiety as to how I was to get our bread and butter had made me somewhat forgetful of my duty. These thoughts flashed rapidly through my mind as I went on, and then I heard the carriage stop and turn. I faced about at once.

"Isn't that Sophronia?" I heard, and in a moment the carriage door was thrown open and I was drawn inside to Miss Elizabeth's kind arms. They had both thrown up their veils, and first one kissed me and then the other.

"Drive a little way back with us, Sophronia, dear," said Miss Evelyn, "and tell us all about it."

"Gladly," said I, as I took the place into which Miss Evelyn, being the younger, pushed me, on the back seat beside her sister. I sighed as I thought of the look unspoken and the boarder's dinner to get, but I could do nothing but go with them. These dear ladies had been my friends when I most needed friends, and when the Judge married me, though he was no judge then, they gave me my wedding from the Hall. Since they and their brother had quarrelled about his changing his religion, and they left the Hall for a home of their own, I had seen little of him, though he always gave me a pleasant enough bow when I passed him on the road. The ladies had now come from their home at Springborough, called hither by telegrams, and I could see that, having heard the news only yesterday, they could not have arrived before.

"Tell us all about it, dear," said Miss Elizabeth. "Did he suffer very much? Was it sudden? Poor David! I little thought when—but tell us, my dear, what you know."

"I can't tell you anything at all," said I gloomily, "or very little. I know almost nothing."

"What! Sophronia, that isn't like you. Never went near poor David in his last illness? Why, how could that be? So unlike—"

"I went, over and over again," said I. "When I found I couldn't get in at the front door, I went round to the back to old Margot. Yes, she is still there. But there was no hope for me. I only heard each day that he was no better."

"But how perfectly absurd! Why couldn't you get in?"

"The priest wouldn't allow it, and there was no one to prevent. You know your brother had quarrelled with his old friends down in the village and over at Marchbank, and they none of them felt like interfering."

"Who took care of him?" asked Miss Elizabeth with tears in her eyes.

"A Sister of Charity, I believe. Margot told me so."

"Margot would hardly like that," said Miss Evelyn.

As I recalled the old Scotch woman's stern face, and her anger at the priest dominating herself and everyone else in the house, I shook my head. "No," said I, "Margot was very indignant, but what could she do? She could have gone off and left him with them, but that she would not do. She could not desert Mr. David, she told me, no matter how he had treated her. She would not go and leave him in the hands of his self-appointed friends, strangers to everyone, about here. I promised the old gentleman, she said, that I would never leave Mr. David, and I won't—not for the Pope himself."

"She is a very bitter Protestant," said Miss Evelyn, who had leanings towards Rome.

"She had excellent reasons for being one," returned Miss Elizabeth. "She was brought up as we all were, in the Scotch Presbyterian church, and why should she change at her age?" She looked as unutterable things at Miss Evelyn as her sweet face would allow.

"We won't go into that, dear Elizabeth," said Miss Evelyn very gently. "Let us hear what we can from Sophronia before we reach the Hall."

"When did—did my brother pass away?"

"It was night before last," said I. "Baldy Towner told me at about seven o'clock in the morning, when I went to get the eggs."

"And you went up at once, of course?"

"Of what use?" said I. "I had been so many times. They would not let me in when he was living. How should I have got in when he was no more?"

"Who nursed him?" asked Miss Elizabeth with a tremulous voice.

"She told us a Sister of Charity," said Miss Evelyn.

"They say she never left him night or day," added I.

"What was his illness, Sophronia? We have heard nothing, you see."

"The Squire broke his leg while hunting. Haven't you heard, even that? It was only two weeks ago. Fever set in, I believe. He sent for that doctor he had at the seashore, a Doctor Lestrangle. He thought there was nothing equal to Dr. Lestrangle. Of course, Dr. Williams did not like to interfere. I believe that he did once pay him a friendly visit, but Dr. Lestrangle was so distant, and your brother seemed so completely under his thumb, that Dr. Williams never went again. Margot said the Squire wasted so fast, she couldn't see how it came about. He was a healthy man. Just a fractured leg, and he had a good constitution too."

"Has anything been said about a will?" asked Miss Evelyn.

"That makes little difference," said Miss Elizabeth. "He had but a few personal effects to will away."

"Not that I have heard," said I, answering Miss Evelyn. "Margot told me, the last time I was up there, that she had heard a good deal that wasn't intended for her to hear. One day she crept up the back stairs and listened at the door. The Sister of Charity was soothing him and talking in a very intimate way, much more so than you would suppose possible for a Sister, and he said to her, 'How can I ever repay you? No—there! Let me hold your hand, it can't do any harm. Shall I leave you something in my will?' 'Oh, no!' she said, 'oh, no! We can hold no property, you know, Squire Darlington. Perhaps if you were to give me some money, I might convey it to my sisterhood.'"

"How good, how pious you Sisters are," Margot heard him say. 'If I should put into your hands something valuable—very valuable—what would you do with it?' 'Oh!'" gasped Miss Elizabeth, "not that! Not that!" I looked at her. She was very pale.

"Go on, Sophronia," said Miss Evelyn.

I continued: "I would turn it into money, she said, and give it to the church. But I should have to have a deed of gift from you."

"There are some jewels," said your brother."

[To Be Continued.]

His Sermon Reached Them.

When the Rev. Madison C. Peters, at one time a popular Philadelphia divine, was a very young man, he was invited to deliver the sermon in a rural church on a Sunday in June, says an exchange. The day was extremely warm and a window behind the pulpit had been raised in the interests of ventilation. Mr. Peters laid the rather voluminous manuscript of the sermon he had prepared on the desk of the pulpit, and began; but the third word had not passed his lips when a breeze from the window caught the manuscript and blew its hundred odd pages of note size paper scattering over the expectant congregation. Mr. Peters looked frustrated for a moment, then, recovering himself, he smiled and said:

"Well, perhaps that sermon has reached more of you than if it had gone from the pulpit in the usual manner."

TWENTY WERE KILLED.

Rear End Collision on the Southern Pacific.

About a Score of Persons Were Badly Injured—Passenger Train Crashed Into a Disabled Owl Train.

A Byron, Cal.

Byron, Cal., Dec. 22.—As a result of a rear-end collision between the Stockton flyer and the "Owl" train on the Southern Pacific railroad at Byron Springs Saturday night 20 persons were killed, four more may die and more than a score were injured severely. Twenty-seven injured passengers were put on a train to be taken to the Southern Pacific hospital at San Francisco. Five persons died on the way and of the 22 injured who reached the hospital, R. Post, of Fowler, Cal., and Lee Sou, a Chinese, may die.

The Owl train had stopped at Byron Springs on account of a broken locomotive. A brakeman went back to flag the Stockton train, but for some reason the "flyer" did not stop.

After the "Owl" left the Oakland Mole it was noted that there was a leak in the flue of the engine. This increased to such an extent that it was deemed advisable to stop here to take up a freight engine for relief. The train officials knew that the Stockton local train was following a half hour behind and a flagman was sent back down the track to give warning of the presence of the "Owl."

It is said that the Stockton train, in charge of Engineer Maguire and Fireman Joyce, got the warning signal in due time and gave the usual response with whistle blasts. Why the incoming train was not checked, however, has not been thus far explained, the men who could give the facts being numbered among the badly injured.

None of the passengers of the Stockton train were injured and all of the crew of the "Owl" escaped unhurt.

Among the injured was E. Lee, of Louisville, Ky., burns on head, face and arms.

San Francisco, Dec. 22.—At the Southern Pacific hospital Sunday night two more victims of the Byron wreck died, Richard Post, of Fowler, Cal., a medical student, and Mini Magawa, a Japanese girl, and the death of Mary Baird, another victim, was reported from Oakland. This makes the total number of deaths 19.

Fresno, Cal., Dec. 22.—D. J. Vernon and Carl Mayer, injured in the wreck, died in the hospital here Sunday night.

Funeral Services Conducted Over the Remains of Mrs. Ulysses S. Grant.

New York, Dec. 22.—In the mausoleum on Riverside Drive brief and simple services were conducted Sunday over the remains of Mrs. Ulysses S. Grant. In addition to the members of the Grant family there were present among the 500 persons to whom invitations had been sent, Gov. Odell, Mayor Low, Secretary of War Elihu Root, Mr. Adm. Barger and staff, Gen. James Grant Wilson, Gen. Granville Dodge, Gen. Horatio C. King, Gen. Charles F. Roe, New York N. G., and staff, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Carnegie, and many federal and municipal officials and officers of the army and navy stationed in the city.

Gen. Frederick D. Grant and the members of the family occupied seats overlooking the crypt. The services, conducted by Bishop E. G. Andrews, of the Methodist Episcopal church, and Rt. Rev. Alexander Mackay E. Smith, Protestant Episcopal bishop coadjutor of Pennsylvania, opened with the hymn, "Lead Kindly Light," after which the burial services of the Methodist Episcopal and the Protestant Episcopal churches were read. The services were closed with the reading of a poem, "The Land Beyond the Sea," which had been a favorite of Mrs. Grant, and the singing of the hymn, "Abide With Me."

CHRISTMAS MAIL BURNED.

Only 20 or 30 Out of 700 or 800 Pouches Were Saved.

Syracuse, N. Y., Dec. 22.—Official report of the burning of a car load of Christmas mail en route for the west was made here at 3:45 o'clock Sunday afternoon by the crew of mail clerks arriving here from New York on the fast mail No. 3 on the New York Central which left New York at 8:45 a. m. Only 20 or 30 out of 700 or 800 pouches were saved, the burned mail being for Chicago and points further west. Some of the mail was destined for the Philippine and Fiji Islands. The mail sacks were in a storage car which carried no clerks. The crew was on the car behind and discovered the fire between Peekskill and Highland. The car was left burning at the latter station.

Kipling's Poem.

London, Dec. 22.—The Times Monday morning publishes a poem by Rudyard Kipling, which is a strong protest against the Anglo-German agreement with regard to Venezuela. The poem probably will cause much discussion.

There are plenty of people who have become depressed and discouraged, because that dry, hacking cough hangs to them continually. They have taken much medicine, mostly of the advertised quick sort, nothing like Dr. August Koenig's Hamburg Breast Tea, the discovery of a noted German physician. We do not say that this will cure a case where the lungs are badly diseased, for it will not, and up-to this date, there is nothing that will cure under these conditions, but on the other hand, if the lungs are not hard hit, the patient should take Dr. August Koenig's Hamburg Breast Tea, a cup full every night on going to bed, have it hot, drink slowly, then every other night, rub the throat and top of the lungs with St. Jacobs Oil, cover with oil silk, let it remain an hour, then remove. Eat good, plain, nourishing food, live in the open air as much as possible. By all means sleep as much out of doors as possible, that is, windows wide open, except in the very severe weather. Take a cold sponge bath every morning; then immediately rub the body vigorously with a coarse towel. Take Dr. August Koenig's Hamburg Drops every other day according to directions. One can buy the three remedies for $1.25 of any reliable druggist. Begin the treatment at once, and see how much better you will be almost within a week's time.

Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Miss Alice Bailey, of Atlanta, Ga., tells how she was permanently cured of inflammation of the ovaries, escaped surgeon's knife, by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"I had suffered for three years with terrible pains at the time of menstruation, and did not know what the trouble was until the doctor pronounced it inflammation of the ovaries, and proposed an operation. 'I felt so weak and sick that I felt sure that I could not survive the ordeal. The following week I read an advertisement in the paper of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in such an emergency, and so I decided to try it. Great was my joy to find that I actually improved after taking two bottles, and in the end I was cured by it. I had gained eighteen pounds and was in excellent health.'"

—MISS ALICE BAILEY, 56 North Boulevard Atlanta, Ga.—$5000 forfeit if original of above letter proving genuineness cannot be produced.

The symptoms of inflammation and disease of the ovaries are a dull, throbbing pain, accompanied by a sense of tenderness and heat low down in the side, with occasional shooting pains. The region of pain sometimes shows some swelling.

ANNOUNCEMENTS.

FOR REPRESENTATIVE.

We are authorized to announce A. S. THOMPSON as a candidate for re-election as Representative from Bourbon county, subject to the Democratic primary, February 14.

In this issue of THE NEWS will be found the announcement of the candidacy of Hon. A. S. Thompson, as a candidate for re-election to represent the county of Bourbon in the house of the next General Assembly. Mr. Thompson, in every way, reflected credit upon himself and the county, when he represented the people in the last house, and there could not possibly be made a better selection than in sending him back again. He is a dyed-in-the-wool Democrat, always ready to work to the interests of his party, and it is customary to re-elect a man when he has made a faithful member, we trust that the many friends of Mr. Thompson will give him the hearty support in the race that he justly deserves. Mr. Thompson is a young man who has made many warm friends and is easily recognized as one of the best workers in the Democratic party, and we trust that he will have the support of the entire party. The primary election will be held on February 14th.

The New Christian Church Dedicated.

A large crowd was in attendance, morning, afternoon and at night, at the dedication of the new Christian church, in this city, on Sunday. The church is certainly one of the handsomest places of worship in the State and one that the congregation can well feel proud of.

Rev. Z. T. Sweeney delivered the dedicatory sermon and there were several ministers present from near-by towns, who took part in the services. Delegates from Cynthiana, Lexington, Winchester and other central Kentucky towns were present.

The church, which was erected at a cost of $53,000, was begun fourteen months ago.

On Sunday morning there was a deficit of something like $15,000 yet due on the church, and the sum of $14,500 was raised at the morning service with little or no effort, the members of the church subscribing liberally to liquidate the debt.

A great amount of credit is due to the ladies of the church in the way they worked so faithfully in assisting in the payment on the new house of worship.

Dinner was served to the out of town visitors at the old church, on Main street, and all who came, enjoyed the day's exercises, and it will be one long to be remembered.

SOCIALDOM.

—On Friday evening, the elegant home of Dr. and Mrs. Frank Fithian was the scene of one of the most delightful entertainments ever given in this city. The Darby and Joan club was the guest of honor and it was the first meeting of the club this season. Dr. and Mrs. Fithian, who are always very gracious and attractive to their guests, were especially complimented on the perfect success of this occasion. Four beautiful prizes were given. Mrs. Thompson Tarr was the fortunate winner of the ladies' first prize, which was a handsome silver cut-glass perfume bottle. Mr. Swift Champ and Mr. Thompson Tarr cut for the gentleman's first prize. Mr. Tarr being the lucky one, was presented with a cut-glass ink stand, with silver tray and top. The second prizes were won by Mrs. Sidney Clay and Dr. W. C. Ussery. After the prizes were awarded, the guests were taken to the dining room, where they were seated at a large round-table in the center, with small tables surrounding. The tables were beautifully decorated with vases of white and red carnations and ferns. Lunch was served in five courses, consisting of quail, salad, sweet breads, ham, celery, hot rolls, punch, etc. The ices were American beauty roses, with individual cakes.

GREAT STRIDES MADE.

Wonderful Richness of the Soil of Western Canada Has Turned the Tide of Immigration.

The great strides which Western Canada is making, and the wonderful richness of the soil, is creating considerable excitement, not only in Canada, but in the United States and Great Britain. The large crops of the past two years, with phenomenal yields, have enacted a movement towards the west, which will not be checked until every available homestead is taken. The Edmonton Bulletin, one of the "farthest north" newspapers, in a recent article on the Northwest as a wide and open field, says: "There must be fertile soil, there must be a suitable climate, there must be the possibility of building up a modern civilization; and the conditions must be such that labor can reach the land; or in other words, land must be cheap. The Canadian Northwest contains the largest unbroken area of country on the continent, or in the world fulfilling these conditions. In its thousand miles of plain which stretches from the Lake of the Woods to the Rocky Mountains Canada is able to offer land to the landless of the continent, and of the world. This year (1902), the only complaint, over all the vast stretch of territory, of the farmers and ranchers, is that the railways have not sufficient rolling stock to move to market the returns of the past season.

The area under crop in Western Canada in 1902 was 1,997,330 acres. Yield 1902, 117,922,754 bushels. Wealth waits on industry in Canada. There is plenty of room.

Prices have advanced in Western Canada 50 per cent. in the last two years, and the upward movement seems still on. The migration into Canada is becoming notable. Some body has estimated that 25,000 acres of Canadian land are sold a day to people from the United States.

Whatever doubts there have been as to the suitability of the Canadian Northwest for settlement, those doubts have been set at rest by the successive yields of previous years, and by the crowning glory of the past year (1902), which gives solid assurance as to possibilities that would not otherwise have been believed. The fact of the grain production of the past season in Manitoba and the Northwest, 117,922,754 bushels from 1,997,330 acres, and that a certain number of farmers have produced a greater value of wheat, oats, and cattle for sale than any other equal number anywhere else in the known world, is the best possible answer to the question: "Is there wealth in the Northwest?" Not only in the Northwest but in the whole country has there been prosperity.

The Canadian Northwest is not all alike in its production. Wheat growing is the specialty of one part, cattle ranching of another, and mixed farming—the growth of grain and live stock together—of still another. Speaking roughly, the southeastern parts of the Territories and Manitoba are wheat growing; the southwestern part of the Territories is ranching, and the northern part of the Territories is mixed farming. Differences of soil, climate, and other conditions are the causes of these differences in agriculture in the various sections. But it is safe to say that in no other area of the world is there an equal possibility of the production of wealth from the soil, whether by one branch of agriculture or another.

TREASON TO THE CZAR.

What Would Certainly Have Happened Had This Thing Ever Been Perpetrated.

"Ha, Whoopkoff, you are the very man I have wanted to see so much," relates the Cleveland Plain Dealer. "Hush, Demidoff, draw aside lest the secret police get wind of us and we are pinched." "Yes, Whoopkoff, I will be prudent. And now tell me, where is Skoopsy?" "What! Do you not know?" "Know? You alarm me. What has happened?" "The very worst. Poor Skoopsy is on his way to Siberia." "Alas, alas, how did it happen?" "We do not know. There must have been a traitor in the camp. The secret police seized him just as he was taking a card to the doorway of the palace of the czar." "Merciful Nicholas! And then?" "And then they hurried him to the mines." "Without a trial?" "Without a trial." "Great Gortebakoff! And what, oh, what was within on the fatal card?" "Girl wanted!"

ROOSEVELT ACCEPTS.

He Will Arbitrate the Venezuelan Troubles.

It Is Believed That the Negotiations Will Soon Reach a Stage Assuming a Definite Arrangement and Obviating Hostilities.

London, Dec. 22.—It is believed that President Roosevelt's answer to the proposal made by the allied powers that he arbitrate the Venezuelan issues has been received in London. The strictest secrecy with regard to every phase of the negotiations is preserved, however, and it is impossible to make a definite statement, but such indications as are obtainable point to President Roosevelt's acceptance of the office of arbitrator.

A constant interchange of cablegrams is proceeding night and day between the United States embassy here and the state department at Washington. It is believed that the president's answer will be submitted formally to the foreign office Monday. By Wednesday, unless some unexpected complications arise, it is believed the negotiations will reach a stage assuming a definite arrangement and obviating hostilities.

It must be said that the acceptance of the office of arbitrator by President Roosevelt would greatly surprise the foreign office, which always has been doubtful of the issue of the arbitration negotiations on account of the belief that President Roosevelt, or the United States, was not willing to undertake the responsibility thereby involved.

Judging from private American advices which have been received in London President Roosevelt, as arbitrator, would be favorably disposed toward the temporary adoption of some such method as was arranged with the Venezuelan secret mission and communicated to the state department by Isaac Seligman. With President Roosevelt acting as arbitrator the serious objections in the matter of guarantees, which frequently have been mentioned at the foreign office and in these dispatches, would disappear. The foreign office has repeatedly said that the great difficulty in its seeing a way to agree to a pacific settlement of the Venezuelan trouble was its inability to ascertain to what extent the United States was willing to assume responsibility.

In spite of the fact that Sunday is usually sacred to leisure in London's diplomatic circle, Sunday it was marked by activity at all the embassies, and especially the American, where work was in progress all Saturday night. The promptness with which Washington deals with those vital matters concerning which prolix pour parlers have been interchanged in European embassies here and there and forms an interesting phase of engrossing situation.

Berlin, Dec. 22.—It has been learned here that the governments of Germany and Great Britain have adopted answers to the proposal to arbitrate the Venezuelan issues. These communications will be handed to Ambassador Tower here and to Charge d'Affaires White in London Monday. A press correspondent has learned further that the German answer agrees in all substantial effects with the British answer and makes no separate reservations in behalf of the German case.

Caracas, Dec. 22.—In the name of Venezuela President Castro has signified acceptance of the appointment of President Roosevelt to arbitrate the Venezuelan difficulty.

Port of Spain, Trinidad, Dec. 22.—The blockade of Venezuelan ports was begun with an effective force at midnight Saturday night. The British have the cruisers indefatigable, Alert and Tribune, the special service steamer Columbine and the torpedo boat destroyer Rocket along the coast. The cruiser Aradine, the flagship of Vice Adm. Douglas, is here and will remain here. All the British operations will be directed from Trinidad.

The cruiser Vineta, the German flagship, left here Sunday morning for La Guayra to reinforce the German cruisers Gazelle, Panther and Falke and the training ship Stosch. The Charlotte, another training ship, has left here for St. Lucia, her presence on the blockade apparently being unnecessary.

The United States battleships Kearsarge and Alabama arrived here Sunday afternoon. Their appearance provoked considerable comment on shore, but when Adm. Higginson called upon the acting governor of Trinidad and the commander of the British ships he took occasion to explain that the visit to this port of the American men-of-war was part of the usual winter trip of the squadron. As the American vessels entered the harbor the Charlotte saluted Adm. Higginson's flag, a courtesy which was also extended by the English ships. The salutes were returned.

Rebels Capture Ciudad, Bolivar.

New York, Dec. 22.—Ciudad, Bolivar, a great Venezuelan post on the Orinoco river, has been taken by Gen. Matos at the head of insurgent forces. It is believed that he will march on Caracas, put himself in Castro's place and pay the indemnity.

Died of Blood Poisoning.

Jamesville, Wis., Dec. 22.—Mrs. Ida Davies Green, widow of the late Capt. Green, U. S. N., who committed suicide at Rio Janeiro three years ago, died here Sunday afternoon of blood poisoning.

FIFTY-SEVENTH CONGRESS.

Second Session.

Washington, Dec. 18.—Senate.—The senate Wednesday passed the pension appropriation bill without discussion. It carries $139,847,000. An urgent deficiency bill also was passed. The amount carried by this bill is $1,148,400, and includes an item of $500,000 to enable the secretary of agriculture to stamp out the foot and mouth disease, which has become epidemic in the New England states. At 2 o'clock, Mr. Keen, of New Jersey, called up the resolutions expressing the regret of the senate at the death of the late Senator Sewell of New Jersey, and feelingly spoke of the life and character of the deceased. He was followed by several other senators, and as a further mark of respect an adjournment was taken until Saturday.

House.—The legislative appropriation bill, with the following amendment to enforce the Sherman anti-trust law, was passed: "That for the enforcement of the provisions of the act of July 2, 1890, the sum of $500,000 is hereby appropriated out of any money in the treasury not heretofore appropriated to be expended under the direction of the attorney general in the employment of special counsel and agents of the department of justice to conduct proceedings suits and prosecutions under said acts in the courts of the United States; provided, that no person shall be prosecuted or be subjected to any penalty or forfeiture for or on account of any transaction, matter or thing, concerning which he may testify or produce evidence, documentary or otherwise, in any proceeding, suit or prosecution, under said acts; provided, further, that no person so testifying shall be exempt from prosecution or punishment for perjury committed in so testifying. This appropriation shall be immediately available."

Washington, Dec. 19.—House.—The house Thursday passed the bill to reduce the duties on the products of the Philippine Islands coming into the United States from 75 per cent. of the Dingley rates (the present duties) to 25 per cent. of those rates. The discussion of the bill was accompanied by considerable maneuvering in the democratic side to secure test votes on various amendments designed to lower the tariff barrier still further, and a record vote was forced on a motion to recommit with instructions to report a bill providing for absolute free trade with the islands. The division on this proposition was on party lines with the exception of Mr. McCall (rep., Mass.), who voted with the democrats. The discussion of the pure food bill, which has been made a continuing order until finally disposed of was begun. Mr. Tompkins (O.) and Mr. Adamson (Ga.) opened the debate respectively for and against the bill. Mr. Gardner (Mass.) opposed the bill. The McCall resolution, calling upon the state department in the Venezuelan embargo, was adopted at the beginning of the session.

Washington, Dec. 20.—House.—The house Friday passed the pure food bill by a vote of 12 to 20. There was not a quorum present, but the point was not raised by the opponents of the measure. The bill inhibits the introduction into any state or territory or the District of Columbia from any other state or territory or the District of Columbia or from any foreign country, or to the shipment to any foreign country, of any article of food or drug which is adulterated or misbranded. The above inhibition is made to apply to any one shipping, delivering or receiving within the regions named any such food so adulterated.

THE CHILDREN ENJOY

Life out of doors and out of the games which they play and the enjoyment which they receive and the efforts which they make for the greater part of that healthful development which is so essential to their happiness when grown. When a laxative is needed the remedy which is given to them to cleanse and sweeten and strengthen the internal organs on which it acts, should be such as physicians would sanction, because its component parts are known to be wholesome and the remedy itself free from every objectionable quality. The one remedy which physicians and parents, well-informed, approve and recommend and which the little ones enjoy, because of its pleasant flavor, its gentle action and its beneficial effects, is Syrup of Figs—and for the same reason it is the only laxative which should be used by fathers and mothers.

Syrup of Figs is the only remedy which acts gently, pleasantly and naturally without griping, irritating, or nauseating and which cleanses the system effectually, without producing that constipated habit which results from the use of the old-time cathartics and modern imitations, and against which the children should be so carefully guarded. If you would have them grow to manhood and womanhood, strong, healthy and happy, do not give them medicines, when medicines are not needed, and when nature needs assistance in the way of a laxative, give them only the simple, pleasant and gentle—Syrup of Figs.

Its quality is due not only to the excellence of the combination of the laxative principles of plants with pleasant aromatic syrups and juices, but also to our original method of manufacture and as you value the health of the little ones, do not accept any of the substitutes which unscrupulous dealers sometimes offer to increase their profits. The genuine article may be bought anywhere of all reliable druggists at fifty cents per bottle. Please to remember the full name of the Company—CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO. is printed on the front of every package. In order to get its beneficial effects it is always necessary to buy the genuine only.

It is curious that a man should in these prosperous days, be so long without food and get so hungry that he faints at the sight of a roast turkey set before him, but such a thing happened in New York the other day.
